

introduction

ncg media was established in 1990 and is independently owned and operated. We currently publish ten titles, six consumer and four business-to-business, as well as producing publishing solutions for a diverse range of clients.

ncg media is different from other publishing companies as we have nearly two decades of publishing experience, producing a stable of successful titles that operate in a number of UK and international marketplaces. These encompass both consumer and B2B arenas. Our hardworking, flexible and creative working environment allows us to meet the needs of a diverse range of disciplines for ourselves and our clients.

An example of our original thinking and planning was the creation of New Homes, a magazine that has been developed through a relationship with The London Evening Standard. A partnership that has established the UK's largest circulating title devoted to the new homes sector. The title was runner up in the PPA IPAC awards for best brand extension.
